The Honorable Richard Cordray, Director
Consumer Financial Protection Bureau
1700 G Street NW
Washington, DC 20552

RE: PROPOSED PAYDAY LOAN RULES

Dear Director Cordray:

We thank you for your leadership of the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau and the tremendous steps that the agency has taken toward securing consumers' rights in just a few short years.

We, the undersigned civil rights, consumer, labor, faith, veterans, seniors, and community organizations from all 50 states, write to strongly urge that you ensure the expected rulemaking concerning small dollar consumer lending effectively ends the debt trap scam. Payday, car-title, and high-cost installment loans, with annual rates of 300% or more simply dig borrowers into a hole. It's time to end the scam and put rules in place that will end abusive practices and slam shut the debt trap.

The CFPB's own research has well documented the debt trap created by payday lending, with the typical borrower indebted for more than 200 days a year and 75% of all payday loan fees generated by borrowers trapped by more than 10 loans a year. Beyond the research, all one needs to do is travel a street in a low-income community or community of color to witness the strikingly high concentration of payday and high-cost lenders. Additionally, these loans are particularly devastating to individuals with a fixed-income, such as seniors on retirement or Social Security Income.

Payday and high-cost lenders, who fail to ensure their loans are affordable and instead rely on aggressive collection tactics, rob borrowers of opportunities to secure a foothold in the mainstream financial services market. Rather, these lenders push safe options further out of reach by locking borrowers into a long-term debt trap and increasing the likelihood of a cascade of other harmful financial consequences such as bankruptcy, excessive overdraft fees, and involuntary bank closures. The resulting adverse impact on credit scores can make it even harder to ever find one's way back to mainstream financial services.

Payday lenders don't just destroy the financial futures of individuals but also of neighborhoods. As noted in the NAACP's recent Congressional testimony, "We need to rid our neighborhoods of predators and stop the proliferation of abusive predatory lending products that strip, rather than build, financial health and wealth in our communities.”¹

The CFPB has before it this unique opportunity, and indeed obligation, to bring meaningful reform to the marketplace. We urge that any rule addressing high-cost payday, car title or installment loans, accomplish the following:

1. Require the lender to determine the borrower’s ability to repay the loan, including consideration of income and expenses;
2. Not sanction any series of repeat loans or provide any safe harbor of poorly underwritten loans;
3. Establish an outer limit on length of indebtedness that is at least as short as the FDIC’s 2005 guidelines – 90 days in a twelve-month period.
4. Restrict lenders from requiring a post-dated check or electronic access to a borrower’s checking account as a condition of extending credit.

The above principles are the foundation for an effective rule to end the debt trap. The recent release of Department of Defense proposed rules to update the Military Lending Act serves as a powerful reminder that rules need to be comprehensive to block evasions. The changes we are urging put predatory lenders on the same footing as other lenders, requiring them to play by the rules and make fair loans.

We greatly appreciate your attention to this critical issue. We look forward to working with you and the Bureau on establishing clear rules for consumers to have access to fair and affordable credit.

Should you have any questions or if you would like additional information, please feel free to contact Gynnie Robnett at gynnie@ourfinancialsecurity.org or at 202-466-5671.

Sincerely,
