

Help protect Americans' retirement security by supporting new rules that would require financial advisers to act in the interest of their customers rather than for their own financial gain.

Join the president's call to the Department of Labor to issue these rules, and don't let congressional action undermine this commonsense effort.

I am thrilled to sign this petition. Marcia Lefkowitz

I support Senator Elizabeth Warren, and President Barack Obama in any action they will take to protect, and support seniors, and other vulnerable American citizens, in any way. Our citizens must always come first, and not corporations, or other business entities, ever, at all. All elected representatives take a solemn pledge to serve the people, and this Congress should do so, as it is their legal and moral duty to do so.

Main Street or wall street --- there are way more dollars on wall street but the votes are on Main Street. But I guess you and your billionaire cronies are pretty confident you can buy those votes, especially when those same cronies are picking the pockets of ordinary middle class Americans.

This hostile take over of America by private citizen multi billionaire Koch brothers et al has been systematically implemented over the past 30 years we need to end this gerrymandering and stop the sale of America to these industrialist and we need to regulate the federal reserve or shut that private bank down! Trying to get a balanced budget in the backs of the poor and what is left of the dwindling middle class is an abomination!

This is a "no brainer". It is hard to believe that people can work hard all their lives and end up with retirement then be "circled" and preyed upon by shady financial advisers and brokers. These crooks don't work for their money but steal other's hard earned cash. We need to protect the hard working people of this country and make sure their retirement is not stolen by the thieving financial advisers and brokers!

I have worked consistent, hard, long hours for almost 28 years now and look forward to retiring with the decent support of income that I have invested in and saved for since the day I started work in 1987. After retirement, I look forward to continuing to work hard to contribute to society doing work that I love, with the support of the retirement paycheck that I have worked hard for. I am one among many with this hope. Please help protect the future of honest, grounded investments vs. unethical investments for financial gain - in any scenario.

I confess that I was not aware that financial advisers were not ALREADY required to act in the best interest of a client. While I do not use the services of a financial adviser, I am shocked to learn that before these rules are established, people remain at the mercy of their financial advisers. If anyone wants to go on record opposing this common sense protection for middle class retirement savers who have been forced into the market by Reagan and Bush era changes promoting defined benefits over defined contributions let them do so at their peril. We've just about had it w/ the bought and paid for corporatist (Fascist?) government. It's gonna be a hard rain that's gonna fall and the elitist shills will not be able to hide in their gated communities from justice. Know justice, Know Peace No Justice? = no Peace

So many of us are having to go back into the workforce due to ill advice...left with nothing but paying IRS...especially those of us who were forced into early retirement (under 59 1/2) bodies to surplus situations. Paying all kind of penalties.

Please try to help insure that integrity and fair treatment, which used to be so high on everyone's list, continue to be part of America's standards. Help protect retirement security by requiring that financials will be held accountable for giving the best, most honest advice they can -- not advice to pad their own pockets.

Republicans, you wanted to unburden the business community of pension obligations. Fine. But the need to regulate those who seek to invest workers' self-funded retirement plans need to be regulated, just as the pensions were. Government acts best when it act on behalf of citizens.

It is vital to protect American's retirement security. It is far from easy to understand Wall St. and most financial dealings these days. there are a few average retirees who really study and understand the marketplace. I am not one of them. I not ignorant and have tried to understand the workings but I need courses to even understand the jargon. I don't really know if my investor is working in my best interest or not. I like to think he does but I just really don't know. Retirement money needs to be relatively secure and you need to be able to trust that your financial planner is working in your best interest rather than theirs.

Yes, now we're facing the crux of a major issue world wide..It is a classic "Us vs. Them" scenario. The bankers / Federal Reserve system has the Proletariat at a huge disadvantage. It is Congress task to remedy that unfair advantage and restore their own integrity.

It just makes sense right? Don't let the people trying to give you a plan to help you save money for your retirement end up stealing a portion of that money you are trying to save. Not everyone will be able to work when older and it feels ethical to save as much money as you can for when you can't do what you could when you were young. Think of this. Would you steal a portion of your Grandmothers check, or any elderly person, every month just to get yourself a couple extra bucks? It's just wrong.

Too many elected leaders have bought into the idea that unregulated businesses operate in the best interest of their customers. Time and time again this is proven false. Businesses operate in their own best interest, primarily their financial interest, often through fraud and deceit, but always to get the most profit for the lowest outlay. It should be government's responsibility to command and control the excesses of capitalism.

In 1979 President Clinton (Slick Willy) sign into law, allowing less Bank regulation. That was the start of the 2007-2008 Depression. Our Government is controlled by the greedy, elite 1% and their never ending thirst for more money for them and less for us. It is an outright SIN for them to take away our hard earned retirement security savings.

Fees should not eat up all the earnings on these 401K accounts that sadly have been sold to America as a replacement for a pension. I think it is criminal to take advantage of any pension or retirement plan investment. This is critical to survival. Sadly in a whole lifetime most will never be able to save or invest wisely enough to last through retirement. This is a pipe dream but it is made more difficult by all the fat cat fees that plague many of these funds. Our president and Senator Warren are wise to do something about this!

as a retired citizen with a financial advisor I expect the Dept. of Labor to protect my life's savings.

Toni Portnoy
Scottsdale, AZ 85260
Feb 26, 2015

Hiring a financial advisor turned out to be like hiring a highway robber to me. They were after all my retirement so they could live high and assumed they had rights to as much as they could. I find that lawyers are their best friends. It is so sad to recall how hard my husband worked and how we gave up things to save for the future. My advisor used the tactic of offering the carrot and the bait and switch. I was so trusting. Complaints go nowhere when local government officials are afraid to confront powerful men and side with the common person.

This should be such an obvious tenet of any professional paid for advisement by their clientele. The fact that it isn't happening is proof that financial advisors aren't able to self-regulate themselves. As someone who pays $2500 yearly in financial advisor fees, I wholeheartedly support these new rules. Ethical advisors who are already acting in their clients' best interests shouldn't mind, correct? Any Congress person who stands in the way of these rules are clearly on the side of ethics-benders and should be voted out.

This shouldn't even need regulating or legislating. This really shows how far out of ethical and moral behavior our country/business community/Congress has strayed. The fact that we need 'new' rules is truly disgusting, but also enlightening to see how low we have come. We can do so much better; perhaps now is the time at last.

We earned it. We paid into it .We were promised it. We qualified for it. It is an American right. It needs to be geared to true inflation-which has not been true in the past. People that are receiving double or triple-dipping retirement benefits need to be cut back to acceptable levels. CEOs need to be put on reasonable %s of what the average worker in the corporation receives. The playing field definitely needs to be leveled so the rich 1% don't bankrupt the middle & lower classes.

It is time to let retirement accounts, like the State Teachers Retirement System, to vote their corporate share as shareholders. Then the huge corporate paychecks could be reduced to something rational and the millions distributed to share holders for legitimate taxation and income. We cannot let the cheats keep the money.

Sure does not feel like the health care of my grandparent's era. Now, I appreciate, more than ever, how much our parents took care of our health and general welfare (not necessarily a bad word,by the way) ! We reaped more than we deserved. I feel that I can never repay them for their lifelong tireless and unselfish hard work and sacrifices so that we could enjoy a prosperous childhood . They secured our chances for a practical education and bright future, never blackmailing us into following in their footsteps. It seems we are now presented with car salesmen like fast talkers who seem to be more concerned with closing the deal than providing affordable programs. Reams of redundant paperwork,unreasonable deadlines,threats, both implied and real, More than enough to overwhelm even a seasoned Rhodes scholar! Life may have seemed simpler back then but we may have frittered away our freedoms,our physical and financial security,our culture, proud heritage and history,too busy trying to be all things to all people.

I welcome protection by financial advisors to act in the best interest of their clients. However, the companies they work for don't allow them to do that -- as far as I know. So, let's change that and let advisors help their clients like they should.

These con artists are doing their best to kill Social Security, so they are the only game in town, and then want to be free to screw their customers. What a surprise.

I used to be an successful investor back before the Glass-Seigel Law prevented brokerage houses to become banks so the Fed lowered interest rates to have chumps buy homes and stocks, collapsing the the economy so taxpayers could bail out big banks who became bigger banks after they bought out other less successful little ones that survive today and make most of their money speculating on derivatives thanks the the brainy sell-out computer nerds or quants that designed soft-ware to the make split second decisions that no individual investor could possibly match, cept Buffet and maybe me (if i had money left) as a world expert on precognitive gambling and investment.

i believe what the president is proposing to pass onto congress is important. Retiree's should be able to enjoy their later years without the worry of whether their money is actually in the different accounts they've been investing in when they reached those golden years. i know from personal experience what a heart breaking experience that is. My father was in his late 60's when he lost money to the Enron scandal. that should have never happened but it did and with better regulations it can be avoided. so help the president and all those other up standing americans change laws tha will help americans, our retirees.

This initiative to disengage personal gain from the appropriate and objective advice financial advisors have a fiduciary duty to provide is long past due. We will never know how much this moral and ethical injustice has cost so many Americans, but there can be no better time to rectify and correct it than now.

case study: I was disabled at work about 30 yrs before my planned retirement. Working for the State I can not collect workers compensation for any loss of wages (only fire and police) are eligible. add to that similiar senior scientists in industry made 2-4x. As a single mom I paid for daycare. Now i am below poverty level. And my ex attched my disabily check for child support. He also put a lien on my home for child Child support so having tried three times am not able to refinance under "keep Americans in home" nor conventional low rate loan. My first investment portfolio started in 2008 an l,ike millions middle class like me lost more than we could afford. My investment broker was fired from his firm. Please protect us!

As an insurance broker I have a fiduciary responsibility to place my client's interests in the forefront of all transactions. Yet my power to ruin a client and his business is far lower than that of a financial adviser. Absolutely they should bear the same responsibilities, not to predict the market but yes to be liable for a clear pattern of steering or misrepresenting funds. Elena Schott

I have lost hundred of thousand of dollars through trust management and their investment by these firms, in the stock market. Trustee's & Banks, and Fiduciaries are nothing more then legal criminal activity to extrapolate, and exploit a beneficiaries wealth for their own . Under the current system their is no protection of wealth for a beneficiary or investor, as unethical investments are the easiest way covertly to take your money. With front running common place among banks investment strategies, selling their own product to you at a premium when its actually a loss, is the creative way to take your inheritance, retirement savings, and your sanity. In this situation, a Bank broker or trader might buy or sell a stock with knowledge of a forthcoming position that a brokerage house will take. That position is an institutional-size order that will materially affect the stock's price. Trading on such sensitive information that is not available either to clients or the public is a form of front running, and it is not only unethical, it also is illegal. You think about what the Goldman & sacks, Lehman Brothers, and others, did in the real estate market is nothing short of what Trust banks and their involvement in the stock market also do. The Bank and Investment Cabal, will take where ever it is possible to make up for the banks losses. Wall Street, Investment Bankers and their attorneys is nothing more then a license to steel. Do not ever put put Trust with a institutional trust bank. I don't believe anything will ever be done about any financial circumstance where Wall Street and the banks are condemned for their practices, as they are one in the same. And government must answer to the Banks. Good Luck

As a financial planner who is a fiduciary and who works by the hour, no product sales, there is no reason to not require all who offer investment advice to be fiduciaries. Protect our consumers.

A financial adviser whom my mother trusted bought her an annuity--against her explicit instructions never to spend her money on annuities. This sort of high-handed maneuver should be outlawed, and that law strictly applied. Older persons are often treated in such a disrespectful manner, even when they are quite capable of making the important decisions. It's simply wrong.

Can you take a further step: making get financial advising more available and more affordable? Is there any trustworthy government agency/organisation that can provide advice to regular hard working people who don't have that much time to move their 401K fund allocation around. Their life-long savings is not growing in the way they expected.

Good job Sen. Warren wish rest of Democrats would speak with a powerful voice like you,They just sit there n take lies,and blame everything on them when it's them not doing their job.All the want to do is raise money,don't care to govern for our country.They complain too much government but congress is the government ,they have government jobs,with government perks,loopholes to not pay taxes.They get paid with our middle class taxes as they don't pay their share of taxes,they go to Washington to get rich even if they were already wealthy.They play games with Democrats,Senate Republican's pretend they are passing something but behind D's back they may tell R's n Boehner don't pass it in the house.They go to the last minute to maybe pass a bill which is most likely full of poison things knowing then it won't get passed n then blame Democrats.All they do is play games with people lives.Sen.Boxer,Pelosi,Sen.Durbin,Rep.Gutierrez n maybe a couple of other Democrats.Thanks Sen.Warren for ur hard work for our country.

The well-established rules of fiduciary duty which presently apply to doctors, lawyers, brokers and real estate agents should be applied to ALL occupations which have such control over people's lives and livelihood. This should, I repeat, SHOULD be a no-brainer.

This is scandalous! To know how much that 1% siphoned off by financial advisors over the years can affect the retirement of the middle class that is continually shrinking. Please help protect MY security by insisting that the Dept of Labor issues rules that financial advisors actually act in the interest of their customers. Why hasn't this been the case all along. What about all the little old grandmas and grandpas who have cheated by advisors who think taking a little bit here and a little bit there won't hurt. These rules should be a prerequisite for doing business in the first place!!!!

Wall Street has for too long been allowed to commit crimes against the American people and our economy. It's about time that at least something "preventative" is being considered instead of just allowing Wall Street to continue unabated to do whatever is the desire of those with all the financial clout being able to do as they please to the rest of us. By all means, some common sense accountability WITH SOME CONSEQUENCES FOR A CHANGE! Thank you for your consideration. Karl Hilgert

Don't let anyone stop you on this. It makes no sense to allow non-fiduciaries to rob seniors blind so that the government might have to step in to alleviate their poverty. Let anyone who disagrees be shamed. Let us know their names so we can vote against them, no matter what party they belong to. Go!

As a retiree I fully support these new rules and the people who want to implement them. We finally seem to be moving in the right direction thanks to MoveOn, Daily KOS, and many other like minded organizations and their supporters. Now if we could only motivate people to vote during elections we could really move this country forward.

I lost half million dollars shortly after I retired from a financial adviser that told me he had discovered the key to investing and would make me lots of money. He was recommended to me by Pacific Bell and I trusted him. Big mistake - I took him to arbitration several years later, while he was found guilty - he wasn't fined much and the $50,000 he had to pay went to my attorney at the time. And he took $48,000 - - I worked for 36 years and had well over 1 million dollars, and I have been working ever since I retired. I will be 70 this year and am so tired of working - and stressed if i don't keep working I will loose everything. PLEASE REQUIRE FINANCIAL ADVISERS ACT IN THE INTEREST OF THEIR CUSTOMERS - rather than for their own financial gain.

Since we no longer have an adequate Social Security system that is insulated from right-wing "free market" ideology, this measure is vital to the long-term economic security of much of the middle-class. Non-professional investors need some protection against the Madoffs, Wells Fargo, Goldman-Sachs and other financial advisors who improperly put their greed above the welfare of their clients.

I have been the victim of a financial advisor selling me a bill of good in order to enrich herself. I lost over $40,000 on the deal. It is the duty of an advisor to have the best interests of the client in mind rather than a paycheck. One can still earn a great paycheck while protecting the interests of a client. Anything else is just plain lazy and WRONG!

Two different banks I have $ with tried to get me to invest in their fund, which would charge me 4% if ever took out more than 5.3% per year. What if I needed a new car? An operation that was costly, but not all covered by insurance? Their so-called financial advisors had no other advice for me than their own fund. None. That's not an "advisor". That's a front man.

YES YES YES. In our pension plan, one of the most prestigious of teacher pension plans, we were SHOCKED to say the least when one of the professors came in and told us she had just checked her portfolio, since she had added her inheritance estate to her pension plan folder.....and she had been bleeding out $35,000 a DAY due to ENRON, WorldCom and that scandal. Most of us had nowhere near that amount, but I was told by an outside advisor that due to the losses in my portfolio, I would have to pay several THOUSAND dollars a month until I reach 70 to be able to scrape along when I retire. NOT great news. I NEVER told them to invest in any of those companies. BUT, most of us had signed into a three tiered program and trusted them. HOW wrong.....they had NO financial obligation to us.

I support new rules that would require financial advisers to act in the interest of their customers rather than for their own financial gain. Their job should be to take care of their customers. It's just the right thing to do! Just as doctors should put the need of their patients first it should be true for the financial advisers! Thank you.

This is vitally important because people wouldn't be getting financial advice if they knew how to go about it. If financial advisors are supposed to be helping people, then they won't object to these rules. If they are fleecing their clients, then that's another story. Clearly, we need this legislation now, since financial institutions don't seem to care about anything but their own gain.

This is step in the right direction. This comment box is not the place to begin ranting about the changes I hope our country makes in the next decade, but at least I can begin to express my sentiments. This is a critical step forward in the manner in which the Department of Labor interacts and assists American citizens. Please honor their wishes and enact these new rules to help protect the retirement security of future generations.

I know that you will do what is in the best interest of the American People instead of the Monied Interests and continue to block these small minded efforts of the modern Money Changers. Corruption as you know is at an all time high, and needs to be stopped dead in it's tracks. Ethics need to be returned to our Governmental Process if we are to remain a democracy. Thank you !

It is sad that regulators have to be subject to rules that should be part of their code of conduct. Of course, the same could be said for our Congress, who's code of conduct is articulated in the Constitution.

I believe that most investors, when availing themselves of a financial advisor, think that the financial advisor is already acting in the the investors best interest, but apparently that isn't the case and this legislation would force financial advisors to act in the investors best interest.

Please protect the Retirees, they worked hard for their Retirement Funds. I had a sweet auntie who lost of several thousand dollars in original ATT Stock and San Diego Gas & Electric Stock because of the Floating fund her Stockbroker put her in...She trusted him because he was young and would flirt with her. She was 70 yrs old and a widow at that time. What he did to her was unconscienable. She died in 2011 and she never recovered her losses. Isabella Virgilio, San Diego, CA

I personally have been a victim of a broker acting not in my interests but in the interests of the profitability of his brokerage. We require doctors, lawyers, engineers, real estate brokers, and many others who claim to act in the customer's interests to actually do so, why not stock brokers and investment professionals?!

Fiduciary responsibility use to be common sense in America. Our Regulatory agencies have abused their authority and their mission has been altered to extort financial wealth from the America people, while our Dysfunctional Congress can't provide oversight and re-evaluation of projects utilizing tax payers funds. Our Bureaucracies need more accountability and over sight, because they are unelected and can serve their entire life's, and therefore become vary cozy with Big Money interest, like a member of an elected office does. The Highway 20 expansion Project in Western Iowa is a perfect example of failed over sight and accountability of financial mishandling and lying to the public to cover-up the real reason I-20 is stalled. Misappropriation of federal funds by State officials lack of fiduciary accountability.

Not only should advisers be held to this standard, but all past cases of "we were only pretending to give you good advice" should be subject to a massive class-action lawsuit, by the government, against all of these companies, on behalf of the people. The action? Outright lying. False and misleading advertising. Deliberate false representation while pretending to be providing useful information. The injury? Typically half of a retirement fund was lost. The remedy sought? 80% of all stock ownership in the harming companies -- the many various financial companies behind this all -- goes to the individuals who were misled and lost money as a result. AND: Those people have the ability (as new share holders) to elect a new board, without penalty --  Meaning, that all "Golden parachute" or "Suicide" clauses that would take effect on change of board members are voided.  AND: The new board has the authority to sue the members of the past board for theft of company funds, targetting all the "bonuses" paid to old board members that were nothing more than robbery from those injured in the first place. Note the key point: Do not try to get money from the corporations. Instead, get stock ownership of the corporations, and then go after those people who were paid bonuses out of the corporation.

A capitalistic economy produces wealth, but it must be remembered that such an economy is based on greed and a hierarchy of accumulation. Such a system must have clear enforceable rules and oversight to make it serve all citizens with honesty and equality.

I worked for $1.00 an hour after high school and was advised to invest in a mutual fund by a nice man in a suit and tie. I lost all my high school savings a few months after investing. Thank God for junior college. I have never asked for financial advice again, and I am 62 years old. If you think ripping people off is good for business, think again.

Wall street puppeteers will be pulling lots of strings to prevent this and (mostly) the GOP puppets will do as told! Still, one can hope and pray that RIGHT will prevail and that some will actually exercise integrity and a Christian ethic of "what's good for one is good for all" or as close as they can possibly come to the way they KNOW it should be!

Good luck on this new ruling, I support it but... , my Dad had a saying that I've NEVER heard from anyone but him, and it seems to fit well here, "AS LONG AS THE WORLD IS ROUND NOTHING'S ON THE LEVEL." Think about it, succinct and unarguable ! Again, GOOD LUCK.

STOP THE FISCAL EXPLOITATION AND ABUSE OF OLDER EMPLOYEES' RESOURCES, THE ELDERLY AND THE DISABLED FROM THESE UNETHICAL FINANCE PROFESSIONALS. I TOO HAD TO BATTLE WELLS FARGO'S UNETHICAL LOS ANGELES BRANCH EMPLOYEES, WHO ASKED ME MY ETHNICITY AND IF I HAD RELATIVES IN MEXICO, AND LISTED ME AS "A LABOROR" EVEN THOUGH I TOLD THEM I AM DISABLED AND RETIRED!!! THEN THEY TRIED TO FISCALLY ABUSE ME AFTER I CLOSED MY ACCOUNT, CLAIMING I OWED THEM MONEY!!! THIEVES!!!!!!

As I enter the second half of life,I not only see the over-emphasis on acquisition so apparent in the 1980s, but also a complete lack of regard for others. Somehow the generation after me didn't learn that integrity is the true goal. The appearance of success has become a craving and "branding" ones self should be driven by good intention, vice the belief that one can get around to being a better person once they have enough. This unquenchable need drives people to use and disrespect others. This includes theft of property, reputation and sense of safety. Therefore, safety and the basics of integrity must be learned on the job. A firm outline for behavior and good financial boundaries will make for longer term and healthier relationships for all parties. I heartily agree that limits must be placed on those who might become predators as well as those who simply need training in this area.

It seems to me that this is how it should be, and how people view professionals. Why would we pay for help if we thought or knew it was not going to be for our benefit? It is concerning that we have to have a petition for something that should be implicit and expected.... not to mention ethical.

We need more laws to protect Seniors & Retirees. We work all our lives -building up Medicare & Social Security-then when we are old & NEED it, we can only afford to pay rent or eat! What kind of choice is that? Please help protect the rights of American Seniors who made our Country what it is today.

It is outrageous and immoral for any kind of service provider to put their own interest and gain above the individuals (clients) who engaged them, and who in good faith, believe that professionals will truly and meaningfully help them in their goal achievement That financial advisers can knowingly, purposely and, most egregiously, legally act for their own financial gain at the expense of their customers and their hard earned life savings must stop. The current practice makes a mockery of the supposed axiom, "the customer is always right."

While our government turned a blind eye, Corporate America has robbed workers of their defined pensions and replaced them with 401K plans. This was the biggest rip off ever and now we have financial advisors who are looking out for themselves. This system was designed as a gift to Wall Street. Enough already, quit ripping us off. First, the middle class pays more than their fair share in taxes and now Wall Street wants to rip us off in our retirement years. Disgusting!!!

We are now retired and fortunately have checked each and every handling of our money along the way...yet, in being careful over 35 years a number of times we lost money due to false information. We wholly support what might be called law driven ethical financial honesty and a needed acumen for advisors to deal ALWAYS in the best interest of the client.

In the 1980's my wife and I were victims of an unscrupulous financial advisor. American Express did provide minor financial compensation, but we lost quite a bit of our investments. Our new advisor proved himself to be a very ethical man and competent financial advisor. This proposed change in rules would have saved us the unnecessary headaches of our former advisor. Thankfully, we recovered well only out of good luck in finding meeting our current advisor.

401Ks are killing middle America and a poor excuse for old fashioned retirement pensions (and I get that this is what big business wants) anything we can do to protect teh ability of hard working Americans to have a retirement that will actually provide not just income, but income that honors the hard work so many have put in for so long is a GOOD thing.

Protect social security. It is not an entitlement. We worked for it. Unlike what the CONGRESS is doing for their retirement. There should be only one retirement system. SOCIAL SECURITY for teachers, state and federal employees. One INSURANCE FOR ALL SINGLE PAYER FOR MEDICARE, FEDERAL, STATE & PUBLIC EMPLOYEES. MAKE it FAIR FOR EVERY BODY.

I know how utterly irresponsible "financial advisors" can be. Some of them are ethical but those driven by the commission only are disgusting. I know because I started to work in that business back in the 1980's. It took me less than a year to realize how dishonest some of my "managers" were. I walked out. Too bad too - we had a great view of the San Francisco Bay from our offices. These new rules really matter. I support them 110%.

PLEASE make this the law!! I had a financial investment adviser talk me into an investment about which he either outright lied or lied by omission. The following year, I got a tax bill for $7,000. I'm a struggling divorcee with a lousy paying (female industry) job, and was shocked. He was lining his own pockets by making my investment switch and to heck with my pockets!

It is amazing that a "rule" to act ETHICALLY, to actually help the person who is paying for your services, is required for financial advisors to 'do the right thing'! This speaks volumes about the morality of our financial institutions and WHY we need to protect the public from 'too big to fail' banks and Wall St. corporations! IS THE DEPARTMENT OF LABOR CAPABLE OF ACTING IN THE INTEREST OF THE ELECTORATE? We shall see.

Wall Street is powerful enough! As a Professional Firefighter and an EMT I work for my community like they are family. Why shouldn't our retirement Financial Advisors do the same? My parents are forced to keep working past their "retirement" age due to the Wall Street "crash". What happens when they can't work? They become my responsibility, tax payer's responsibility or destitute. They worked their entire adult life, even served our country, saved, and invested....for what? Please protect our investments! Thank you.

THIS SHOULD BE MADE LAW<IT SHOULD GO WITHOUT SAYING THAT FINANCIAL ADVISERS SHOULD BE REQUIRED TO ACT IN THE INTEREST OF THEIR CUSTOMERS INSTEAD OF PUTTING THEIR MONEY WHERE THEY CAN PERSONALLY BENEFIT THE MOST> I have been the recipient of a financial adviser that was acting in his personal interest instead of mine and it really hurts to lose hard earned money to a creep like that. I am 100 oercent behind this law.

So long as the American people stand together, financial reform should not be barred by partisan Congressional action.

These kinds of unethical practices are becoming the standard with Wall Street and people are getting tired of the greed we are seeing. (not to mention the Anger over having to bail out the last fiasco) Instead of taking care of your client's, you look to line your own pockets first, and at their expense. Your client's retirement security is not a Ponzi scheme to be exploited for profit.

Please require Congress to mandate that the Financial Consultants, Brokers in the financial community to have Fiduciary Responsibility for all their clients. It is unconscionable that they are under handed, unethical in their dealings. Also would like to strengthen the reforms that were suppose to prevent the foreclosure & near global meltdown of the global financial order in 2008-2009. We uphold & applaud your efforts to level the playing field. I was almost a victim of a financial VP in a major brokerage company who tried to take advantage of my grief for my Mom's passing.s verbal assurances & promises were contradicted by the Disclosure Agreementwhich he said was an Enrollment Form. It pay to read everything with a find tooth comb. Do not allow the lobbyists & their Congressional lapdogs to sabotage your noble efforts. Sincerely,
Bobbi Mendelson

Want them to act ONLY in the interest of their clientele. (will just go through shadow banks unless this is very specifically outlawed.. then they will set up in-house ghost client accounts to 'short' the clientele investments).. and must also include severe punishment for the attempt of thwarting not only the letter of the law but also it's inherent INTENT.

Personally, I should have known better. BA in Economics, BA Bus. Admin. But, I tried to keep my kids in a stable environment during high school and lost $200,000 in IRA's because of bad advice and crooked housing lenders. No, I paid 20% down, conventional loan. But, the regional housing market went so far under my wife and I -both teachers lost everything- and now, at 71 years of age I should be retired but still working to pay off IRS and other debt.

It is about time that financial "advisers" be required to act in their customer's best interests, and not be self-serving. "Churning" a client's account for the purpose of generating commissions is simply another form of theft, and needs to be stopped, period.

If financial statement auditors are required to act in the interest to protect the shareholders and users of financial statements, if the doctors and nurses are required to act in the interests of their patients, if the teachers are required to act in the interest of their students, if parents are required to act in the interest of their children, if bus drivers and even train operators are required to drive safely as a way to act in the interest of their passengers.....shouldn't the financial advisers have to act in the interest of their customers?

Financial advisors usually try to assure their clients that they (the advisors) are working in the client's best interests -- but too often they are acting in their own interests. There should be rules that encourage them to keep their word.

Tho' my income retirement is very modest & need my SS benefits to make it even workable, I am nonetheless VERY luck. Many aren't. If I hadn't been lucky enough to have a defined pension benefit, I would scarce be knowledgable to do it on my own; having a fiduciary who had MY best interests at heart would be, at least, the minimum & even that would be very, very scary. So many folks are being hung out to dry....after sucking them dry of their modest funds....do the right thing here, please.

for decades the Financial Advisers have been under fiduciary responsibility to protect and act for the benefit of the clients. The fact that we have to sign a petition asking congress to enforce this is showing how corrupt Congress has become with the Wall Street Money and hedge fund managers paying a maximum of 15% tax on short term speculative gambling with other people's money, a lower rate than the long term capital gains. Senator Shcumer of NY a Democrat has acknowledged this inequity like tens of Senators and Reps, but they all including Schumer refuse to change it, because they are addicted to the Wall Street money feeding their corrupt governing.

Congress must act with integrity to protect investors and financial planner need to see the example of acting in the best interest of constituents so that they will be encouraged to act with integrity as well. Honesty, truthfulness, and integrity can't be legislated; Congress can lead by example.

This should be a no-brainer. My father lost most of his life savings to unscrupulous financial advisers. That money would have been used to care for him with Alzheimer's disease. His children have to supplement his care and we had to sell his home to pay a part-time caregiver. I am so glad that his dementia keeps him from knowing the depths that our government "of the people, by the people and for the people" has sunk! Congress, if you have any sense of morality, ethics and decency left, protect America's retirees.

Some people don't seem to realize that working Americans pay for the benefits and protection thqt later get when they retire. And, right now, there's approximately $2.8 Trillion in assets in the two main trust accounts for Social Security and Disability Insurance. Now, Republicans want to steal that money away from Americans, who worked hard to earn it.

The new rule to protect consumers is just common sense. As an architect, I am obligated to protect my clients. Why shouldn't my financial adviser be similarly bound. My first experience with an financial advisor resulted in his legally misappropriating my $25,000 in saving and eliminating it completely in a matter of months. What took me years of hard work, he could legally take in a matter of minutes. This is wrong. There should be a law.

We need to regulate financial transactions and how bank operate for profit as their first priority. Requiring our financial advisers to act in the interest of their customers should not even be needed in legislation, but it clearly is a huge need, as they have gone ahead to enrich everything they could for themselves in many cases and have not been prosecuted. Take this action and pass the new rules on financial advisers!!!!

One can expect a free adviser to compensate himself through commissions or kickbacks but expects a paid adviser to honor his customer first. That is true in every other business. Advisers who feather their own nest while requiring payment are unethical and should be prohibited.

As a 45 plus year veteran of the Real Estate industry in the state of Connecticut, where conviction for not acting in the best interest of the customer or client can mean loss of license, fines and possibly jail time, it is inconceivable to me that the financial industry is not held to at least this standard if not greater, as handlers of other people's money. Wow.

Based upon international figures/data, seems my country is nearly the most corrupt of modern nations and some '3rd World.' So disgusting...and very disappointing. As a Vietnam vet and senior citizen, I have long understood now that "my" country is among the most corrupt and "unequal" among modern nations and worse than some '3rd world.' Grateful for those like the President and Warren, others who keep chipping away at the "rot" - so widespread in America!

Thank-you President Obama & Senator Warren for acting in the best interest of ordinary Americans who, historically, have been victimized through pathetically poor financial advice, the contract peonage of credit card contracts, predatory mortgage deals, payday loans, and just the contemptuous & elitist nature of the financial and insurance profession in general. These are the most undesirable people to be around...and, frankly, I wonder what (other than scamming Americans out of their few & hard earned dollars) motivates them to get into the insurance & financial professions to begin with. A breathtaking and bewildering lack of ethics and common decency! Respectfully, Christopher H. Preston

Pick pocket economic legislation like this is often back by democratic elect who are just as much corporatist as the republicans. Have to have an economic opposition that is party-wide which places large corporations as elements and mechanisms in the economy working directly for a high standard of living, high per-capita disposable income economy from employment in corporations as social contract for their privileges and for their slavish dependency on government as evidenced by their 24/7 lobbying for special favors to uphold their unnatural existence. Retirement security in America is greatly threatened by the audacity of financial advisers to only really act in their own interests and financial gain. This is such a disgrace . . . this needs to end now! What a joke 401K's, 457's, etc. are - and the joke is being played out each day on the American public.

I lost all my retirement saving, 3 times, over the last 15 years due to liars and thieves in Wall Street, banking and Financial Planning. I thought I was smart enough to weed out the "bad guys". I wasn't. They are now living large on my money, and I am 62 with no means to support and care for myself in my elder years. There is no way to recoup the losses they inflicted, and I do mean inflicted, on me. They did it with knowledge, collusion and premeditation. If we want our citizens to thrive, insure all citizens can, not just the liars and cheats in the "investment business".

Here's how it works now: It's the small investor - hard working middle class Americans - who put up the capital, i.e. they are the ones who take all the capital risk - but it's the so-called financial advisors/managers that stand first and foremost to benefit (in the form of management fees, transaction fees, legalized kick-backs from mutual funds they promote to their clients, and so on. The most egregious example of why this is a problem? That 1 - 2% in management fees, for example gets taken off the top whether or not the investor's portfolio increases or decreases in value. No accountability, no liability, no risk for the manager. No guarantees for the investor except the guarantee that over time that 1-2% management fee plus transaction fees, etc. coming out of the investor's top line will add up to considerable losses *for *the *investor. All the while the men in suits drive off in their Beemers and Mercedes' with the investor's money. A good deal for whom, exactly? Especially with no accountability and little if any legally mandated fiduciary responsibility for the manager or broker (none for the broker), it's a good deal only for the financial advisor. Unacceptable. This must change. What a deal - *you , the investor, take all the risk

Time to honor your elders and protect their finances so they can worry less and concentrate on continuing their passionate proactive work to make their local place and their country a better, healthier place. it's time to stop mining old folks and making them destitute when they can be productive and safe. Think of what you would like to do when you age. And when your next generations age. Elders have enough on their minds and hearts staying well to worry how their money is being swept away by unscrupulous practices of Wall Street. Thank you . Please Reply.

This directly effects every person relying on 401 K and similar plans for their security. These "advisors" must work in the best interest of those clients, who include plenty of senior citizens. As a side issue, how does this abrogation of responsibilities play for those pushing for dumping Social Security of individual investment?

If people cannot trust their financial advisors to do what is best for those for whom they are working, then they do not deserve to be in the business of such advising. People must have the rules and regulations in place that protect them so that they are enabled to use their financial resources for them, their families, and anyone else they seek to help through their financial resources. This is the ethical, moral, and right thing to do.

Help protect Americans' retirement security by supporting new rules that would require financial advisers to act in the interest of their customers rather than for their own financial gain. Join the president's call to the Department of Labor to issue these rules, and don't let congressional action undermine this commonsense effort.

Financial institutions would not exist without people. When the people lose faith in those institutions, they no longer will do business with them. I join thousands upon thousands who strongly support new rules that will require financial advisers to act in the best and honest interest of their clients without whom they will cease to exist. For far too long, Wall Street has quite literally raped the unwary public. What's worse is that they have legally been allowed to do so. Now is the time for our government to act for the good of the public and put strong legislation in place for our collective financial protection. Congress must not undermine President Obama in his efforts once more to look after the nation that has twice elected him.

The disasters of 2008-'09 might not have happened had that been the rule. PNC was able to take my 89 yr. old mother's home - even though she had been asking for a new mortgage for over a year when she could not longer pay the mortgage due to loss of income from the bursting real estate bubble. It remains a huge crime.

Thank you. This should have happened years ago. Once again the Baby Boom generation is being blamed for not saving enough for retirement when their financial advisors (if they could even afford to hire one) have been steering them in the direction that mainly benefitted the financial advisor. The fees on their investments have been way too high; their IRAs (Reagan's grand Individual Retirement Account) have underperformed and been mostly useless except to Wall Street, which has boomed. Republicans now are upping the perennial war on Social Security, the last protection the elderly, disabled and widows and orphans have against total poverty.

Thank you, President Obama and Senator Warren. Without this help, we will move swiftly to third world status, given all the changes Republicans want to make regarding major reductions in middle class, working class prosperity. And the poor, they forget altogether, blaming them for their condition and locking them up whenever possible.

Just like doctors, insurance agents, and other specialists in the service industry, financial advisors should be required to act in the best interest of their clients. This fiduciary responsibility is necessary to protect clients who are on the weak end of a significant information disparity and power dynamic that has a long history of abuse. No more making money by taking folks' money by placing it at significant risk without that risk being born by the persons making the bet. We need this reform.

As a retired FINRA registered representative, who is still a working Certified Financial Planning Practitioner, I strongly support the idea of requiring all registered representatives and registered investment advisers to work in the best interests of their clients. However, a commission based financial services system where new representatives are indentured servants to the broker dealers, is not a system that will encourage fiduciary/best interests to prevail. I do not want to paint all representatives with the same broad brush, as many long term representatives do work in the best interests of their clients. Many representatives in the lower echelon of the system work hard and honestly to serve their clients. Yet, they are at the mercy and direction of the upper managements who often do not work with the same concept. Upper management's main and only goal is to "make money" at all costs, as we have so recently seen. The sad fact of this move would be to make the work of the front lines more difficult, while the top layers continue to focus on the bottom line. This idea is putting an infected band-aid on the wound, it won't make things better. Sounds like a great idea on paper, but without the proper direction and enforcement, it will just be another set of regulations making the job more paperwork intensive and changing nothing. Maybe we need to take commissions out of the picture like some other countries are doing, and have advisers work for a fee, require more than the standard industry tests, i.e. series 6, series 7, etc., require training that goes beyond how to sell, and not make the industry a revolving door of young people whose career life expectancy is how many people they know that they can sell products to, how long they can work while companies take part of their income as deferred compensation, which their short careers will not allow them to keep, or have them work as independent contractors which amounts to the previously mentioned indentured servitude. The current structure of the industry is what needs to be changed. What the industry is designed to not want is experienced representatives who have a wealth of knowledge, who know the system is corrupt at its heart, and works within it to do the right thing by their clients. The industry at its heart wants inexperienced people who look the other way, and make tons of money for them, surprisingly, there are people out there who can make the tons of money, know the right thing to do, do it, and stay long enough to do their best to avoid the traps. As long as the brokerage houses do the due diligence and set the production bars, the representatives will be at their mercy and all the best interests concepts will continue to be dust in the wind. FYI: my career involved being a representative, a training manager, a district manager, an acting branch manager and finally an independent representative (truth in packaging no one is ever truly independent in the securities industry.)

It's about time that something is done for the consumers; instead of the corporations and people with the money. The hard working class struggle everyday to raise families and keep roofs over their heads. It would be nice to finally get help for all the work people do throughout their years and then have to struggle through their retirement years as well. Finally people can have a sense of security in their golden years.

I had an experience where the Financial Institution had a negative impact on my tax obligations because they reported the gross amount of a stock sale rather than the actual amount which was my proceeds after their fees were taken out. Then, a representative of the company told me the IRS wasn't interested in the money they received when I complained. Average people just can't win. I was forced into retirement after 35 years of service. E

Help protect Americans' retirement security by supporting new rules that would require financial advisers to act in the interest of their customers rather than for their own financial gain. Join the president's call to the Department of Labor to issue these rules, and don't let congressional action undermine this commonsense effort. There are currently 47,847 signatures. NEW goal - We need 50,000 signatures!

The most important fact we all must remember is that the brokerage houses push the most profitable investment programs that they want their brokers to put their clients and most fee financial planners who manage their clients money may be tempted to put their clients into programs where they will make the most fees. There are also commission financial planners that put clients into Fixed Indexed Annuities that are wrong their client and I think we need to weed those kind of representatives out of the business. It gives those of us who put our clients needs first, of having explain to our clients about the representatives who put themselves first and not the needs of their clients. I have been in business for 46 years and I always thought and feel my client's needs and financial goals and objectives came first. If you take care of your clients and put them in the right programs you will always get referrals and repeat business from them. Marvin L Shelton, Jr Marvin L. There are financial advisers with true professional conduct and unwavering integrity. Sadly, there are many more that are unscrupulous and lack the integrity that should be mandatory. It seems that this is the time for The Department of Labor to man up and take the lead on this issue and protect the people who are in need of advise. Respectfully, RkR Miami

Why does it have to be a "bold proposal" that investment brokers be required to act in the best interests of their clients. It SHOULD go without saying, and it is SHAMEFUL that it does have to be said! Anyone who is against this proposal is against honesty, against integrity, and against ethics. It is about time the gov't protects us rather than corporate America! We lost our jobs, our savings, our income property; we were caught up in a predatory lending mortgage and are $99,000 under water. We can never climb out! This is the result of what these people did to us in the Great Recession! Please help to protect us!

Most individuals are not knowledgeable about the intricacies and risks of investments. They can easily be lured into schemes and expensive programs which drain their resources. Protections are warranted (Warranted).

What ever happened to "The customer is always right" or the concept that business competition means competitors strive to make their products better than their competition in order to draw customers away from their competitors? Some times, not always, the old definition of competition (between businesses) for the customer is better than what it has devolved to. Today if you're the customer you are often told, by implication, "take it or leave, that's the way we operate".

protect the right to age gracefully and with dignity, without the need of my grandmother to be cleaning houses at 85 or the uncertainties my parents face after retirement. Dear senators, congress men and women, yourselves and your families are forever entitled to your pension, which comes out of every tax payer's pocket. Pass laws that protect the rest of us, let me remind you, it is your duty.

One small step towards equality (of the many that need to be taken) in the CEO/Wall Street compensations/paychecks are outstandingly out of control and totally unrealistic in terms of middle case survival. Their greed will bring them down with ultimate and obvious revolution. What a devastating end to the American dream.

I am signing this, but I have no hope big money backed politicians will discontinue boot licking special interests and undermine this initiative. All they want to do is make the rich richer and starve the rest of us. It is so transparent, it's absurd. You disgust me.

It is about time this happened. Imagine how much damage the Republicans could have caused if they had succeeded in getting Social Security "privatized" in "investment accounts" with no oversight like now?? These financial "advisers" would have had even more reason to abuse the trust investors put in them and scam the public even more. It is amazing to us how happy and willing the Republicans are to allow the fleecing of Americans -- even old, fragile, and often gullible elderly people who are not as sharp as they once were and are forced to trust the word of these "advisers" to protect their life savings. When will the Republican party ever start working to protect people instead of creating more and more ways for the crooks to damage us? When? Apparently NEVER.

I was a real estate broker for 30 years. I was required by law to have a fiduciary relationship with my clients because I represented them in one of the biggest and most important purchases they would ever make. That was a huge responsibility. Retirement accounts are no less important and there is no reason those who are advising people on making those investments shouldn't be held to the same standard. These new rules are long overdue.

After a 37 year carrier and putting 8% of my pay in my 401 k I ended up with 18,000$. The year before I had 80,000. Since congress made it ok for employers to force Wall Street investment instead if a guaranteed pension congress owes it to America to make sure investments are in the peoples best interest. Not everyone in the country knows or even wants to spend the time to become a savy investor. If they are even able to. I'm a very good RN but I admit I don't know much about investing. My carrier kept me busy saving lives. The money brokers need to make sure no one else ends up with only 6 monts worth of salary from investments they sacrificed to make. It's inexcusable

If rules have to be made for financial advisors to act with the best interests of their clients in mind, then such rules should be made. Otherwise, why bother? An advisor is sought (and paid) with the expectation that they will act in a client's best interest. Please support such rules. It is only ethical and honest.

Many financial advisers are no different than thieves. I do free taxes for old folks and see the terrible churning that some do; especially for incapacitated clients. Other horror stories are abundant. The very fact that the industry is fighting this is because they don't want to stop being dishonest. Any rules to protect vulnerable older adults' retirement funds should be instituted. The younger folks need such protection, too, but it always seems to be the older who fall prey to the unscrupulous. And, then, they are done- before their children or relatives know what has been happening. Issue these new rules as soon as possible.

I am 70 yrs. old, retired public school teacher, who has tried to be knowledgeable about my modest financial investments in IRA's to be self-sufficient through my retirement years. However, I find I am needing to have almost a blind trust in my financial adviser. Initially, the company was not affiliated with a specific investment company, but not long after I signed on to an ING IRA, they became affiliated with ING. I have no reason to suspect my adviser has done anything but to act in my best interest, but how would I know for sure? Sharon Guber, Ames IA

This is a basic, common-sense consumer protection, objectionable only if we want to place dishonest profiteering above the interests of average Idahoan and American families. Frankly, we're too busy working to make ends meet and trying to get a bit ahead, and don't have the time, energy, or resources to personally and individually monitor financial advisors who otherwise would be free to give us bunk advice or mismanage our money for their own benefit. This is one of many cases where sensible regulation of business and industry--including at the federal level--makes good sense and protects the interests of working families both in our own state and nationwide.

Wall Street almost sunk our family in 2008 and no one would listen or do anything. Investors should be held to the same bar of quality that lawyers and judges are held to. A potential of losing the right to trade for life is reasonable if they break there represented investors trust.

Elizabeth Warren has been a great champion of this cause, and I commend the president for his action. What I don't understand is why state usury laws can be thrown aside to permit the likes of payday loans and other tentacles of the banking industry. That seems like an even better place to protect our citizens.

My friend's account lost $5K and on top of that the fund manager took another $5K in fees for making bad investments!!!! How about no fees if the account loses money!!!! They sell off my friend's assets to pay the fees to themselves. Like the bank is giving us less than 1% on our savings account, fund managers should only get 1% of dividends, interest or proceeds coming into the account without selling assets.

I have just had a convresation with good friends about their financial advisor. He sells them plans for which he is paid so they may not be in their best intreest. They think it is great because they do not have to pay him out of their own pocket directly. I tried to explain why this is a really bad situatuion but they could just not see it. ... and they are not dumb people. Hope this rule helps them.

It is sad that there is a need for these rules. One might think that one engaged a financial advisor in order that he or she give advice that would be to one's own benefit. Alas, that is apparently not the case with many such "advisors." I am not opposed to these persons making a commission, but I do expect them to act ethically.

This matter is at the core of every millennials best interest as we cannot count on retirement means like social security or 401Ks like other generations before as republicans and corporatist democrats are trying to strip the American people of those rights and their ability to monetarily prosper. Please take this measure seriously as we are the most connected and supportive voting populace. Thank you.

It is a shame that we have to support new rules to require financial advisers to act in the interest of their customers. Let us consider that those financial advisers that fail to act in the interest of their customers 1. loose their right to be a financial adviser, 2. that they if convicted in a court of law will go directly to jail for a set time with no good behavior release.

About time...

Russ Watkins
Elk Grove Vlg, IL 60007
Feb 26, 2015

I can afford to pay a financial adviser who assumes fiduciary responsibility for managing my assets. However, many cannot afford to do so. These people are the most vulnerable to the ill effects of predatory adviser behavior. This legislation is badly needed and has my wholehearted support.

former labor secretary and wife of senate leader is on board of directors of a company whose retirement plan administrator forced those who signed up to use their "professional" guidance to diversify themselves to ridiculously low amounts of a company stock that subsequently nearly doubled in value, totalling multiple millions in unrealized gains due to their policy...yet they get paid the same and claim to outperform the average investor-no accountability

This protection for the people of the US seems like a no-brainer. Of course an individual hired to help protect someone's financial worth should be working for that client's best interest, not the adviser's profit. The adviser charges his fees to do his work - that's reimbursement enough. Anything else should be CRIMINAL!!!

Maybe if the fees a broker is paid are closely tied into the gains their clients receive, that might help. Another thing is to make brokers serve in a fiduciary capacity for their clients, as attorneys often do. There are special responsibilities that a fiduciary has. Since the person he is acting on behalf of is not able to make decisions of a certain type, and relies on the fiduciary to make them in his best interests, that could solve the problem, at least most of it. So make brokers fiduciaries, and tie their fees into the level of success he is able to achieve on behalf of his client. Since it is obvious that brokers cannot be relied upon to be honorable to their clients without being forced, it's time to force them. What's shameful is that it should be necessary at all.
